

Horse Saddles For Sale-Help On Buying The Perfect Horse Saddle For You

Your saddle is one of the main pieces of horse riding apparel, so there are many things what you must take note whilst picking out horse saddles for sale. Number one, the riding style needs to be determined. Generally, this can be either English or Western, although there are also specialty saddles intended for activities such as polo, dressage, jumping, as well as racing.

In English riding, any rider keeps one reign in each hand and tells the horse to turn by smoothly pulling one reign, which applies pressure to a bit in the horse's mouth.

Western- style riders hold both reins in one hand and tell the horse to turn by shifting his or her weight or laying the reins against the horses neck. Western saddles are heavier and larger as compared to English saddles and were in the first place made for hard- riding cowboys.

The riders weight is distributed equally across the horses back, allowing the horse and rider to be comfortable on long rides.

Dressage saddles enable the riders leg and also the horse to have the most contact. The flaps are cut straight and narrow and these saddles contain a different cut than a English saddle.

For jumping, a hunt seat saddle is required. This saddle was in actual fact created for fox hunting, and it offers the rider the best position for jumping.

Horse racing needs a flat racing saddle. These are very lite but strong and have quite short stirrups as a result the rider can lean forward as far as possible.

No matter the activity, the next problem is the type of saddle. You can find leather saddles, suede saddles, plus saddles produced from synthetic materials. Leather saddles are one of the most well known, and a high quality leather saddle will be able to last for years. Man-made saddles are lightweight and easy to clean, but perhaps haven't the durability of a leather saddle.

The most important thing for saddles is comfort, for both the rider and also the horse. A saddle that doesn't fit properly causes back muscle bruising on the horse. Saddle sizes are measured in inches, from the pommel to the cantle. There should be 2-3 inches of space in between the rider and also the back of the saddle once seated.

In addition, the saddle should stay firmly in place without slipping and it ought to fit the horse tightly across the shoulders and back without digging in.

There's a lot of saddles out there, so it is necessary to remember your anticipated riding activities whenever your choice of horse saddle for sale.

About the Author

For more free information on Horse Saddle For Sale Tips be sure to try visiting <http://www.horse-saddles-for-sale.com>

Source: <http://anythingaboutpets.com>